

Dr. Wolfgang Looss, took his BS in Economics and his MBA in Organizational Theory and Finance from the University of Frankfurt, and his PhD in Organizational Development and Personnel from the University of Bochum, Germany. He provides management training, individual counseling for managers, management development and organizational development consultation to numerous private corporations and multinational firms as well as non-profit and government organizations in Germany and other countries. His work includes teaching assignments at various Universities and Training Institutes in Europe, Asia and Africa. He has completed extensive post-graduate work in group-dynamics, psychotherapy, therapeutic supervision and family systems therapy. He has authored, co-authored and co-edited several books and articles in the field of management training, organizational development, executive coaching, human resources development and company health care. At present, Dr. Looss is CEO of Lanzenberger, Dr. Looss, Stadelmann, a management consulting firm plus publishing house based near Darmstadt, Germany.