

Pertti Kansanen started as an elementary school teacher and continued his studies in education, psychology, sociology, and literature. Ph.D. in education 1973 at the University of Helsinki. Since 1978 he has been professor of education, first in didactics, later on in teacher education (1982). He has been many years the head of the department and the dean of the faculty during the 1980s. He has been visiting professor at the University of Siegen, Germany (winter semester 1987-88), at the University of Gothenburg, Sweden (1993 and 1995) and for a shorter time in Göttingen, Germany (1999). The main research areas are ethics of education, teacher's pedagogical thinking, research on teaching and teacher education, and The Deutsche Didaktik and the American research on teaching (a comparative point of view). More information on the website: <http://www.helsinki.fi/~pkansane/>